Renewing his attack upon the finding of Judge Webster Thayer before the full bench of the Superior Court today, Attorney William O. DECLARED. He gave the police the name of the man who confessed to him and a description of the other slayer.

The man he named has a police record and his photograph is in the "rogues' gallery" at headquarters. Arrest of both slayers will take place within a few hours, according to District Attorney William J. Foley.

"Flying squadron" of police inspectors in high-powered automobiles are searching for them in various parts of the city and suburbs. Police believe the pair are on a drunken spree together and traveling by automobile.

In addition to the murderers, several other persons, including possibly a woman, will very likely be taken into custody as material witnesses. The slayers' motive was to attack the pretty West Roxbury girl, according to the confession related to the authorities today. She fought so desperately and courageously to defend her.

WON'T surprise you to hear that Europe considers this misguided country responsible for the troubles in China. It is discovered that American missionaries have talked too much to the Chinese about liberty, the right to govern yourself, etc. China decides to adopt your ideas of freedom, without adopting your ideas of Christianity. And once more it is Uncle Sam's fault.

Also the ungrateful Chinese, having learned about liberty from the missionaries, threaten to knock those earnest spreaders of truth on the head.

2 DESPERATE THUGS KILLED MATHESON GIRL, POLICE ARE TOLD

REVEALED BY FRIEND OF SLAYER

Remember that the thugs in desperate mood were forced to look for their own safety to make their escape certain.

The letters went to the murder scene in a sedan, parked it by the side as they went to Weymouth where the victim and died in it after their fight. Those weapons was an automobile that one of them carried in case of trouble.

Which man did the actual killing is not known either to the police or their informant, who appeared so mysteriously to relate the confession he had heard.

Describes Slayers

One of the slayers is described by the informant as a man of middle age, and the authorities believe he may be one of the men referred to by clams of Myrtle as elderly subjects.

The other slayer is a younger man. Within an hour of the time that Myrtle Matheson was killed, the younger man blurted out his confession to the man who told the story today.

Torture mentally for one week since he heard the confession, he urged by his wife to tell the police all the informant finally agreed to tell the authorities everything.

The fellow who did that killing on in West Roxbury told me all about it.

These were the words of the informant as he walked into police headquarters today. His statement, particularly by the police inspectors and as they checked it up in detail they believed that informant was without a doubt telling the truth.

The informant's wife made a statement later in the presence of a police stenographer who went to her home.

Her worry and sleeplessness over the knowledge that her husband knew something of the mystery are said to have led to his appearance before the police.

Arrived Drunk

The informant said the man who confessed to him is an old acquaintance.

On the night of the murder, this man drove up to the informant's home in a sedan. He was drunk, his eyes were bloodshot and his clothes bore stains that looked like blood, according to the informant.

Disheveled and talking incoherently, he blurted out:

"I didn't mean to kill her."

But by his tone more of the slaying, and then he suddenly caught himself and said: "Oh, my right when I get out of this."

He seemed to be seeking sympathy from his friend. The latter tried to make him comfortable and went outside to drive his sedan into the yard for the night. As he approached it he found a foreigner confronting him and shouting:

"What the hell are you trying to do?"

"I'm going to put the car up for the night," answered the informant.

"Like hell you are," was the reply, and the foreigner jumped into the sedan and started the motor.

As the car moved away, the other man came running and jumped into the car and fled with the driver. Then followed days and nights of mental torture for the informant who was torn between a desire to tell the police and a wish

Girl's Last Letter

In the last letter the murdered Maybelle Matheson wrote to her sweetheart, Bernie McDougall, she mentions a letter from "her old dad" in which he expected her home next time.

"I don't think I'll be able to go so early," Maybelle wrote, an unconscious prophecy. The final letter of the murdered girl's father to McDougall is printed here with.

Dec. 8, 1926.

"My dear Honey:
"I'll tell the world you are a nice girl to have. I haven't heard from you since an age. Why don't you keep to your promise and write me once a week anyway. I always manage to write you very often, twice a week."

"Gee, you are a little tired of my letters but I believe you. Honey, and you say you like to hear from me, so I try to please you by just writing often."

WRITES OF GOLD.
"Gee, excuse my bad pen and poor writing as it is 10 cents and all in bed but I believe I can write you a letter but I don't want to go to do for Christmas?"

"Well, dearest Bernie, I am trying to write this and the cat is upon the table and gives me a pencil a push with his paw every few minutes. This letter is not going to be as long as usual because I don't really owe you a letter but I always think I should write you every day."

"We have loads of snow here and it's cold. I am darn near frozen. I'm just lying in my room, little flat, just you and I, oh babe, no snow here. The sun is out, and they attracted his attention by their actions."

To each new arrival Pierce repeated the conversation he had had with the informant, and each realized, as had Pierce, that the problem of a week's standing was near solution.

Information about a sedan seen on the night of the murder was given the police today by Joseph W. Burke, a milkman, of No. 37 Gray street, Dorchester. He told Captain Smith of the West Roxbury division that he saw two men in the sedan and they attracted his attention by their actions.

next June but I don't think I'll be able to go so early.

"Angus and family are not living in Dedham any more. We moved last Wednesday. I'd rather be in Dedham. I can walk home to lunch now from where I work and Angus can, too, so it is handy for us both here but it is cold as the devil. We did go to invest in a new suit yet? Or have any pictures taken?"

ASKS WHEN HE'S COMING.
When are you planning on coming to Boston? I'd love to see you at the Winslow Hall some fine Saturday night. I never see Annie at all. I am going to call her up some night to see if she still remembers Bernie's label, ha."

"Gee, I can't realize Christmas is so near. There was a man asked Angus how old I was today. Angus says 15 and the man says: 'She is no more than 15, so I feel quite young tonight, really.'"

"Honey, dearest, I guess that is all. I still love you, Bernie. I am always yours."

Lamb in Court.
To Walcott District Court a quarter of lamb was used as an exhibit for examination of witnesses in a short-winded case. Jacob M. Cohen of Main street, Walcott, was sentenced to pay a fine of $50, but appealed and furnished bail of $200.

STORY RECORDED

This is the story the informant told at police headquarters, first to Inspector Daniel Hart, then to Inspector Harry Pierce, of the homicide squad who was hastily summoned by Hart, and finally to several other police officials in the presence of a police stenographer.

He said he first went to the old police headquarters in Falmouth square and finding nobody there telephoned to District Attorney Foley who directed him to hurry to the new police headquarters with his informant.

A check-up of many of the details of his story proved he was telling the truth. Patrolmen and plainclothes men worked on these details while inspectors, led by Superintendent Michael R. Crowley himself, dashed out on the search of the homes of the alleged slayers, their places of work and other haunts that they had frequented in the past.

WITNESSES SAW CAR.
His story dovetailed with that of the West Roxbury workmen and residents who saw a sedan, without lights, parked near the murder scene on the night of the crime, last Friday night.

Every policeman met on other duty duty elsewhere was assigned to aid in the capture of the slayers.

Station H. West Roxbury, was the rendezvous for inspectors hastily summoned to start out on the hunt.

Assistant District Attorney William H. McDonnell, Inspector Michael Morrissey, Captain James P. Smith, Inspector James R. Claffin, Inspector Joseph Cavanaugh, Inspector Pierce and all others who had been on the case during the past week went to work on the new angle.

PIERCE SURPRISED

Inspector Pierce was surprised when the diffident-appearing man was shown in to him early today, the man apologizing for the hour of his appearance by explaining that he is a night worker.

Twisting his hat in his hands, and obviously embarrassed, the man explained:

"The fellow who did that killing on in West Roxbury told me all about it."

Instantly the inspector burst a barrage of questions at the man, the quick catchman affecting him no will.

Immediately Inspector Pierce leaped for the telephone and in an instant the wires were abuzz with the hurry calls to every section of the city.

To each new arrival Pierce repeated the conversation he had had with the informant, and each realized, as had Pierce, that the problem of a week's standing was near solution.

Information about a sedan seen on the night of the murder was given the police today by Joseph W. Burke, a milkman, of No. 37 Gray street, Dorchester. He told Captain Smith of the West Roxbury division that he saw two men in the sedan and they attracted his attention by their actions."

THOMPSON HITS JUDGE TAKEN DIES IN SOUTH

Sacco on the stand, Thompson said: "Every question that was asked him by District Attorney Katsmann was a nail in his coffin."

"Thompson stressed many points which he claimed showed the sincerity of Celestino Madeiros in confessing the South Braintree murders."

"I believe in the truth of the Madeiros confession," he continued. His action proved that there was much decency left in him.

"Madeiros said: 'I felt kind of sorry for Mrs. Sacco and the kids. Attorney Thompson quoted the man whose confession in this case caused a stir in his execution.'"

SAYS MADEIROS BRAVE.
"Another proof that Madeiros had some decency in him is shown by his action when he was eighteen years old at the Blackbird Inn, Rhode Island, when he drew a revolver and defied eight or ten armed men trying to take away an Italian girl."

"I'll shoot the first one who dares to touch her," Attorney Thompson quoted Madeiros as saying.

"But this was no more courageous," Thompson said, "than Madeiros' action in asking to his confession with his life hanging in the balance for another crime. He was sentenced to pay a fine of $50, but appealed and furnished bail of $200."

THE END

Judge Alken, who was a Democrat, was chosen in 1922 to represent the strong Republican town of Greenfield in the General Court.

As a Democrat he was elected to the office of District Attorney in the overwhelmingly Republican western Massachusetts district. This was only a small tribute to his popularity.

In 1924 he was offered a seat on the Superior Court bench and accepted. In 1926 he was made chief justice. Until his retirement in 1927, Judge Alken served with distinction and was highly esteemed by his contemporaries. During Governor Foss' administration he was mentioned for the office of Chief Justice of the Massachusetts Supreme Court.

95 U.S. ACCEPT NEW MEXICAN OIL LAWS

Washington, Jan. 22 (U.S.)—Mexico's land and petroleum laws, which the State Department considers so satisfactory that a break in relations has been threatened, have proved acceptable to 95 per cent of the foreign oil producers in Mexico, according to figures issued today from the Mexican embassy here. The embassy statement did not specify their identity.

Up to the Dec. 31, the statement set forth, 143 applications were filed for permits to operate under the new laws, and 133 applications covering some 25,831,520 acres of land.

Of this total, 231 applications concerned oil rights derived from contracts prior to May 1, 1917, when the new constitution was adopted, and 230 concerned rights derived from contracts subsequent to the adoption of the constitution.

The applications embraced 24.7 per cent of the lands affected, according to the embassy's figure, while the applications withheld covered 1,840,909 acres, and embraced 1.8 per cent.

No comment was forthcoming from the State Department. The attitude of the department apparently is to wait until there is an actual "overt act" on the part of the Mexican government in seizing some of the lands whose owners refuse to abide by the new laws.

The religious issue was injected into the Mexican controversy again last night when a mass meeting was held in Washington Auditorium and addressed by Joseph Scott, a Los Angeles attorney.

Wright was subject to a searching cross-examination regarding his assertions linking Gladstone not only with Lily Langtry, but also with Mrs. Bessie and Mrs. Novickoff. "If I call a number of distinguished persons who knew Gladstone and Mrs. Novickoff would be evidence that this thing is a monstrous lie made any difference to you?" queried Norman Shinn, attorney for Vincent Gladstone. "Any man of good standing would be the very man who wouldn't know about it," replied Wright.

During her litigation suit against her husband's father, Lorenzo R. Woodhouse, one of one of the wealthiest families in New York, was alleged by his wife to have dodged both steadily.

Mass., driver of the mail van, and Joseph Buckley of Bedford street, Dorchester, driver of the other truck which is owned by the Massachusetts Transportation Company. The traffic signal system on Commonwealth avenue was put out of operation by the wrecking of the signal post. Traffic was delayed for three-quarters of an hour and a large crowd gathered.

WINTERS' JURY SEES MURDER PORCH

Woodstock, Vt., Jan. 28.—The entire settings of the sleeping porch at the Windsor bungalow in which Miss Cecilia Quillian was slain, including the cot bed, bloodstained clothing and the screen, were shown to the jury in the trial of John C. Winters, charged with the murder, in court today.

When the exhibit had been arranged as it was on the night of the murder at the Quillian bungalow, Sheriff Wallace L. Fairbanks, as the actor demonstrated how, in the opinion of the state, Miss Quillian was murdered.

The sheriff explained the reason for the large amount of blood at the head end of the sheets and other bed clothing, was from the wounds in Miss Quillian's head. Every word and motion of Sheriff Fairbanks was followed intently by the jurors and spectators who filled the courtroom. It was the most dramatic event of the day.

Court adjourned at noon to allow Juror No. 12, Hoyt C. Knight of Royanton, to attend the funeral, tomorrow, of his father, George E. Knight, in Hudson. Winters having waived his rights so that he could do so.

Trial will be resumed Monday.

London, Jan. 28 (A.P.)—Reginald McKenna today at the annual meeting of the London Joint City and Midland Bank, of which he is chairman, declared an immediate increase in bank credit was necessary to meet the demand for money in the face of the fact that the bank of England through other banks was necessary for carrying the larger volume of commodities the present unemployed and the new recruits to labor.

Except for the rigidities of the Bank of England, there was nothing to prevent some response to growing trade demands, he said, as was given in America, where the banking system was framed to suit modern conditions.

The Single Dial Is Wonderful Asset

A Revelation awaits you when you first hear the perfectly tuned Magnavox. These sets are tuned at the factory by a tuning meter that is a thousand times more sensitive than the human ear. No manipulating of three dials is necessary. You simply select your station with a turn of one hand.

3 Condensers of Solid Brass are mounted on a strong single shaft. This condenser system moves with marvelous smoothness and without back lash as is usually the case with gear type single dial controls.

No Guessing for Wave Lengths

Turn to the radio program in your newspaper. Note the wave length in metres of the station, within range, you desire to hear. Then turn to that wave length on your single dial. This dial is not calibrated from 0 to 100 as other sets are. But the dial is calibrated in actual wave length metres from 200 metres to 550 metres.

MOON AND STAR FOOL CAMERAS

Williams Bay, Wis., Jan. 28 (A.P.)—The moon and Saturn, shining in the sky, were the subjects of a series of pictures taken by a camera mounted behind the scenes today and cradled on a tripod to make movie stars of them.

For hours a battery of cameras pointed upward before the dawn had passed too much light, but when the clouds completely hid the occultation of the planet by the moon and Saturn.

The barometer began falling just as the occultation began. The reason was due to the passing of the earth and Saturn, even the powerful telescope in Yerkes Observatory were unable to catch a glimpse of the occultation. Conditions were unimproved an hour and a half later when scientists had hoped to film Saturn again showing on the other side of the lunar mass.

"It was so dark you wouldn't even know there was a moon," laughed Prof. U. S. Frost, director of the observatory for the University of Chicago.

Although the ringed planet was 100 million miles away and the moon was 250,000 or so miles, the conditions of the occultation would have afforded an opportunity favorable to photography which comes once in many years. The last such chance came eleven years ago.

Williams Bay, Wis., Jan. 28 (A.P.)

The moon and Saturn, shining in the sky, were the subjects of a series of pictures taken by a camera mounted behind the scenes today and cradled on a tripod to make movie stars of them.

For hours a battery of cameras pointed upward before the dawn had passed too much light, but when the clouds completely hid the occultation of the planet by the moon and Saturn.

The barometer began falling just as the occultation began. The reason was due to the passing of the earth and Saturn, even the powerful telescope in Yerkes Observatory were unable to catch a glimpse of the occultation. Conditions were unimproved an hour and a half later when scientists had hoped to film Saturn again showing on the other side of the lunar mass.

"It was so dark you wouldn't even know there was a moon," laughed Prof. U. S. Frost, director of the observatory for the University of Chicago.

Although the ringed planet was 100 million miles away and the moon was 250,000 or so miles, the conditions of the occultation would have afforded an opportunity favorable to photography which comes once in many years. The last such chance came eleven years ago.

FEAR FLIER FROZEN TO DEATH IN BALLOON

Moscow, Jan. 27 (A.P.)—Fear that the brilliant young pilot Flight Commander Gavranchikov has been frozen to death in the air, leaving his balloon at the mercy of the winds, has inspired the government to broadcast appeals to the populace to report any traces of the missing dirigible.

SEEK MISSING LAWYER

Harrison W. Barker, Worcester lawyer ordered some weeks ago to reimburse the estate of the late Nellie A. Bostwick $7,500 to make up deficit chargeable to his mismanagement as receiver, has been missing from Worcester for more than a month.

This was the report of Francis O. Gosselin of Boston, special master in the case, who has petitioned for the appointment of another receiver. There was no question raised as to Barker's honesty and as he has a considerable estate which would enable him easily to replace the money, friends are at a loss to account for his disappearance.

BETTY ALDEN'S COMMENT ON SOCIETY EVENTS

Reception Given to Prince William of Sweden

IT WAS THE MOST DELIGHTFULLY informal of affairs, the reception last evening for his Royal Highness of Sweden. Contrived to accord exactly with Prince William's un-royal and democratic ideas, there was an utter lack of the pomp and circumstance one associates with fetes arranged for visiting sons of European reigning families. But this does His Highness move on his way through these United States, telling here and there of his experiences with the big and the little people of Central Africa. And thus with the utmost of simplicity did representative Bostonians of the Upper Ten hobnob last evening with the Prince.

SIMPLICITY EVEN MARKED the setting for the reception room, taking a single note of gorgeous color from the rose red satin hangings and the ring in the rose of deep-piled rugs that were scattered through the reception room. But for true reality, there were handsome frocks on handsome matrons and the glint of diamonds and the sheen of pearls that might well have graced a queen's jewel box. Mrs. Nathaniel Thayer's pearls, roped in three strands about her throat, were jewels of price. With a gown of black velvet and her hair bound in fillet fashion with pearls and diamonds, Mrs. Thayer was a royal figure in the company.

MRS. GEORGE RICHMOND PEARING and her daughter-in-law, Mrs. George R. Peering, Jr. (the former Miss Vera Howell) contributed richly to the picture and each wore ornaments that were lovely in the extreme. The younger matron's black velvet frock, with its swinging fringes, was extremely smart. The jewel glint came from exquisite antique pendant earrings of diamonds set in filigree. Mrs. Peering, the elder, was in a smart frock of black and gold lace and she wore some of the lovely pearls that are a notable part of her collection. Mrs. Walter Verrill Pratt's gown of green and gold time had golden ornaments here and her jewels were some beautiful diamond ornaments.

OF COURSE the I. Ficker Barrs were there. What occasion of royal significance in Boston but counts these world citizens of the interested sponsors? Mrs. Barr's black satin and lace gown had the modish transparent hem, and there was a gorgeous dash of color in the rose and green satin cascade decoration that crossed one shoulder. Mrs. Barr wore a handsome dog collar of pearls and diamonds. Mr. and Mrs. William Gaston moved through the picture that surrounded royalty, and as usual Mrs. Gaston was distinguished in the extreme with her black satin frock, her strands of pearls and her coat of sable.

PERSONAGES OF THE STATE in the city, the Army and the Navy stood with the Prince as he greeted informally the Bostonians who would do him honor. Major General Preston Brown and Mrs. Brown, His Excellency the Governor and Mrs. Fuller, Rear Admiral Pitt Andrews and Mrs. Andrews, His Honor the Mayor and Mrs. Nichols—these were the notable in line. Mrs. Brown wore a creation of soft gray with a silver shawl of the same tone, and Mrs. Andrews was in black velvet with diamond ornaments. Mrs. Nichols added to her white costume a shawl of white with swinging fringe and a border of crimson trim.

VERY SUMPTUOUSLY arrayed was Mrs. Fuller, the Commonwealth's very handsome First Lady. Mrs. Fuller's wardrobe boasts any number of gorgeous creations, fashioned by a master hand and rarely becoming to a woman's height. The gown she wore in honor of the Prince and his reception was a real affair of black velvet flashing with beads. The pearl-pointed hem had its own effect. Over this confection that quite dazzled every feminine eye, Mrs. Fuller wore a wrap of champagne and brocade. Paris brought forth every fold and every bead.

MRS. HORACE MORISON wore white and silver. Miss Nancy Morison was in Mediterranean blue frock. Mrs. Hildan Morison was in lace and silver. Mrs. Jeanette Smory was in black. Mrs. Natalie Merrill came in a frock of soft antique blue with her lace. Mrs. Alfred Whitaker was in black. Mrs. George R. Sutcliffe was in black and Mrs. Nathaniel Stimpkins wore a handsome gown of black velvet with a unique effect of brilliant on the bodice. Miss Emily Goodridge, with her father, Harold Jefferson Goodridge of the sponsors, wore a brilliant

"Guilty"

Miller Off

By Jean McDonough

CHARLES CAME THE NEXT morning. He looked like a deflated man. "I lost him," he began. "Miller got away. I can't get the authorities in Canada to arrest him because I haven't enough evidence, but I've sent a detective to shadow him." "But can't a man leave for Canada without being a criminal?" I asked. "Yes," he answered emphatically. "But Miller didn't leave that way. He left hurriedly and in a queer way an unusual way." (Copyright, 1927, by The Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

"WHAT DO YOU MEAN BY an unusual way, Charles?" I asked. "Well, don't you think that it is unusual for a business man who expects to be away for a long time to go without leaving an address at which he can be reached?" "How do you know that, Charles?" I went to his office yesterday, after I left you, to find out where he had gone. No one, not even his secretary, knew where he was going or when he would be back. "Mr. Miller has gone out of town, sir—that is all I know," she told me.

"I HURRIED OUT OF MILLER'S office and hailed a cab. I thought I could reach the North Station before the train pulled out, but we were held up by traffic and I got to the station just as the guard was closing the gate. I had lost Miller by about two minutes. The train that I heard grinding out of the station carried with it a crowd, who was going to see another man killed for his crime before he returned."

"DORIS," SAID CHARLES EM- phatically, "no man leaves for Canada the way Miller did when he was so much concerned concerning his partner's disappearance. 'Charles, you are going to get into a bad way if you don't get out of here at once,' I changed my mind. I knew that Miller was in the city, but I was going to and the moment now by closing my mind to any further evidence. Davis has been adjudged guilty and that ends it as far as I am concerned." (Continued tomorrow)

The details of how the men, looking down like backbones from the hills of New Hampden, staged the robbery last July 1 today, according to the chief inspectors.
Tues of the men, including Michael Andrews, 29 years old, and his father, John Andrews, with William Hovanshian, were arrested in Nahant after a carefully laid trap had been sprung. The fourth member of the band, John Boyd, alias "Christian John," who had eloped with Michael Andrews' pretty sister, was taken in Gloucester.

The Andrews' sister, Mary, was married about a year ago to John Konfrank of Chelsea. She often visited her father's home in Nahant, and there she met Boyd, who became infatuated with her. A baby was born to her last September, but on October 1 she eloped with Boyd, leaving the waiting for arrangement before the United States commissioner, the police claim, that Michael Andrews made his confession. In his story as given out by the police, young Andrews claims that Boyd, "John the Hissman," under arrest in Gloucester, was the "stupid" man.
His father, John Andrews, and William Hovanshian were in a waiting automobile, while he, Michael, and John Boyd were on the train running from Newburyport to Amesbury and which was carrying the mail. Boyd was carrying the $50,000 payroll for a factory.

Michael claims that as the train was passing through Salisbury Road and the first to alight, he stepped on to his hands. He said that he covered one of the men in the baggage car and Boyd the other. As Boyd kicked out the mail sack, they both leaped from the train. "Almy, young Andrews told how, with the mail sack containing the $50,000 payroll, they raced for the automobile that was waiting in the darkness behind the Boston & Maine Railroad tracks. With the mail sack containing the loot at their feet, they drove the automobile at 40 miles per hour on back road to Lawrence and Lowell.

After reaching Lowell, Andrews and Boyd sought the back roads to Hudson and from there to Nahant, where they went directly to the Andrews home. A few hours later they went to LaSalle district, an isolated part of the city, where the loot was cached.

Three weeks later, Andrews says, they recovered the money, taking it to the Andrews home where his father and Boyd "split." Young Andrews admitted, according to the police, that he had received a generous portion of the money. When he was arrested, the police found $300 on his person, which he admitted was a part of the loot.

SEARCH HOUSE FOR LOOT.
Hunt and police inspectors continued their grilling of John Andrews, who said today that he would be released to admit having any part in the crime. While the officers looked $1,200 in the Andrews' home, there is still much money to be accounted for. As a result, the Andrews' home is being searched.

draws house and the setting places were combed for traces of the loot.

Later today, the police claim, Hovanshian confessed that he drove the automobile that carried the mail train robbery. It was also brought out that Hovanshian and Andrews were employed at the plant of Biddle & Hunt, Inc., the firm to which the money was consigned. Familiar with the routine followed in making the payroll money from the Federal Reserve Bank in Boston, they had an opportunity, the police say, to make well-laid plans for the robbery.

After a trial that carried the Post Office case into the realm of the jury, a joint swoop in communities as far apart as Nahant and Gloucester cornered the gang.

Charles and John were captured in the Texas city with his sweetheart. Whether the girl will be brought into the case, the police say, is not known to the local authorities.

Hovanshian, a youngster, confessed his part in the robbery, according to the investigators, saying that he drove the getaway automobile, but had not been actually in on the robbery, receiving but $5 as his "cut" of the $50,000 loot.

John Andrews, wife of John Andrews, collapsed in the Nahant police station today after an all-night grilling by the postal inspectors and the police. On orders of Chief of Police Irving Goodhue, she was sent to Nahant Memorial Hospital, where a nurse is placed at her bedside. She is said to be in a serious condition.

Mary Andrews, 18 years old, and her brother, William, a year or so younger, who lived at the Andrews home at No. 113 Ash street, were also questioned by the inspectors. Mary was allowed to go, but William was held for further questioning. The inspectors intimated that he will be released unless other developments arise.

John Andrews, with his son, Michael, and William Hovanshian, will be taken to Manchester jail today, and tomorrow will be removed to Concord for arraignment. Another brother, Anthony Andrews, a brother of Michael, was questioned by the officers and released.

Later today it was said at the hospital that there was little prospect of removing Mrs. Andrews from that institution for the present, as her condition is serious as a result of the street of the members of her family.

Just what arrangements had been made to bring back Jack Boyd, alias "Hussler John," who is being held in Texas in connection with the mail robbery, inspectors John J. Brown and Thomas P. Cream of the postal inspectors, could not state. They intimated, that Boyd would be brought back to Boston.

OSBOORNE IN B.A.A. HIGH JUMP

New Standards Will Make It Easier for Record Keepers

By STED CHANDLER
Along with the announcement of the high jump field in the B. A. A. meet February 5, Athletic Director Kinsley gives out the welcome and significant information that for the first time in Boston the new style jumping standards will be in effect.

These standards are made so that the bars on top of the uprights of the jumpers will be the same as the bars on the uprights of the jumpers in the B. A. A. meet. This is the first time in the history of the B. A. A. meet that the standards will be the same as the standards in the B. A. A. meet.

It is possible all doubt as to the requirements of the jumpers. It was hoped that these standards would make the jumpers in Boston at the B. A. A. meet the same as the jumpers in the B. A. A. meet.

OSBOORNE ENTERED.
Osborne will return to the club for the indoor games and a comparison may be drawn between this work over the last year and the new style. It is an individual test, sometimes called a one-day test, sometimes called a one-day test.

One Hour of Football
WHAT'S ALL THIS POPPING OFF ABOUT ANYHOW?
It would seem that W. D. Hubbard, janglester, is pursuing an amiable that can't be captured. After firing a flock of wild shots at the Princeton Tiger, he was later at Princeton, as we saw things, would better start for Africa before exploding any more blank cartridges.

He rambled over to Boston yesterday, to get backing for his fearfully advised initial broadside, and now he's gone away with fewer friends than he had before the visit. He picked on Brown for no known reason. He talked about the Norwich game and the Harvard game, displaying a palpable lack of knowledge in his statements.

A crusade should always consider his publicity. Young Mister Hubbard thought that Harvard would be with him, and was disappointed. Now he picks on Brown. That is to laugh. The Bruins had such a wonderful year in '26 that they can giggle at the arrows of belated criticism.

Everybody who knows sport, knows that the team that is getting kicked suffers all the injuries. The victors, inflated with the spirit of conquest, don't feel the bumps and bruises. Mister Hubbard chirps about the coarse language the Princeton players tossed at him before one game. He says that Herb Treat was among the vilifiers. Yet the unbecoming statistics show that Herb never played in a game in which the sensitive Mister Hubbard was concerned.

That sort of evidence makes one micker. Hubbard played with Harvard in '19 and '20. Herb Treat was in the '22 game. The fact that the exposer came on Braden to buck him up, is positively humorous. Young Braden lingered on the Harvard squad three years and then he was a brother of the famous Yale kicker, with the demountable nose.

He played something like one hour of varsity football, and it took a special meeting of the athletic board to give him a letter. He should be a witness.

EDDIE MAHAN'S GRIN MEANT MORE TO HARVARD THAN ALL THE HUBBARD GROANS.
He was a football hero. He was a poor, and full of spirit. He was a poor, and full of spirit. He was a poor, and full of spirit.

Hubbard Has Few Backers

Wynant Hubbard is finding it difficult to secure backing of any value in his campaign against "dirty football." Contrary to a somewhat common belief, Lotthrop Whittington, former Harvard gridiron star and coach, will not support Hubbard in his charges.

Little to say on the subject, he believes that Hubbard's charges are unfounded and something that cannot be proved. "I agree with you," he said, "but I've given out by Bob Fisher," Whittington said.

Believe Signs?—By SEGAR

Copyright, 1941 King Feature Service, Inc. Great Britain Rights Reserved

Are you so proud of being an Easterner or a Westerner that you do not see any good in any one else?

The person who takes an intolerant attitude toward the residents of another locality is too narrow to have his opinion worth much.

Sectionalism is prejudice.

Prejudice is judgment without a thorough knowledge of facts.

It is easy to say and criticize you know.

If your preference is a personal matter and you have the good sense to keep your opinions to yourself you will not give offense.

But to give to the people of the part of the country you live in a monopoly of all good things you are making a mistake.

Perhaps your experience seems to justify your opinion.

But you are not wise if you let your provincialism blind you. You give to the people of your own locality advantages and if you must have an opinion, study both sides of each part.
